Paint Pointers for Property Owners

The Best is Always the Cheapest. Bare in mind that labor is three fourths of the cost of any painting job. True economy therefore demands that the most durable paint be used.

Paint must not be measured by the first cost per gallon, but rather by the number of square yards of surface covered, and the number of years service.
The price per gallon is of no consequence if more gallons are needed and the paint is not durable.

FROST'S FLEXIBLE PAINT is the cheapest from any standpoint, it has superior body and covering qualities.

Two coats of FROST'S FLEXIBLE PAINT will do the work of three coats of any other.

NEW DEPOT RUMOR AGAIN

Will Soo Company Begin Work on New Structure June 1?

Rumor has it that the Soo railway company will commence work on the building of its new depot about June 1. This is doubted though, as it is thought among local railroad men that the Soo will not put up the new structure this year.

From time to time the public is startled by the announcement that the company is about to erect a new depot in Rhinelander and after the story has been well circulated it dies a natural death and nothing more is thought of it. It is given out as the truth that the Soo people do intend to build a new depot here "sometime" but it is not easy to state whether that "sometime" will be in this century or in the next. No one will dispute the fact that the present depot is scarcely presentable for a station
the size of Rhinelander and should be replaced by a substantial and modern structure.

WILL CONTINUE ON ACCREDITED LIST

Professors Tressler and Elliott Make a Satisfactory Inspection of the High School

At the end of the first half year of school the Rhinelander High school was inspected by Professors Tressler and Elliott of the University of Wisconsin. The inspectors were here for an entire day and were able to visit nearly every class. As a result of this inspection our High school has been continued on the accredited list of the University of Wisconsin which means that graduates from the Rhinelander High school may enter the university without examination except in English. An English examination is required of all students entering. The inspectors found the school to be "well organized and well managed," and said "considering the almost entire change of teachers that the school was in a very creditable condition and that in another year the present teaching force would be able to make further decided improvement in the general scholarship of the school."

As a result of the same inspection
the Rhinelander High school is placed on the accredited list of the North Central Association of colleges. This means that our graduates may practically enter any college in the upper Mississippi valley without examination. Schools consider it of special distinction and honor to be placed on the North Central Association list.

TINSELED POST CARDS HELD

Postal Law Forbids Them From Leaving
Local Office

Rhinelander people who sent Easter greetings in the form of souvenir post cards to distant friends and relatives will be surprised to learn that some of the cards failed to reach their destination and in fact did not leave the Rhinelander post office.

These cards were of the fancy tinsel variety and as the senders neglected to enclose them in envelopes they were held up at the post office.

The postal laws require that such post cards be enclosed or they will not be permitted to pass through the mails. It is claimed that the tinsel on these cards will easily work into the hands and in such a case is liable to result in blood poisoning. One mail clerk is known to have lost his life through handling these cards.

Assistant post master Reed says that large numbers of tinsel cards were thrown out at this office and were destroyed.

JURY IN THREE LAKES LIQUOR CASE IS UNABLE TO REACH AN AGREEMENT

OLKOWSKI'S REQUEST TO PAY ALL COSTS IS GRANTED AND PROCEED-INGS FOR NEW TRIAL DROPPED

Jury is Drawn To Try Burgraff But Defendant Pleads Guilty and Judge Walker Imposes Heavy Fine—Cases Attract Considerable Attention

The cases against John Olkowski and Antone Burgraff, the two Three Lakes men arrested last week charged with the illegal selling of liquor, came before Judge Walker in municipal court, Monday and Tuesday.

In the Olkowski case the jury disagreed. Later the defendant was ordered by the court to pay the costs of the case amounting to $52.43 and the proceedings for a second trial were dropped. A jury to try Burgraff had been drawn but when court was called to order Burgraff expressed a desire to change his former plea of "not guilty" to "guilty" and this was granted by the Judge. Burgraff was fined $75 and costs amounting in all to a total of $120.81. In both cases the liquor confiscated by the officers when Olkowski and Burgraff were taken into custody will be destroyed by order of the court.

When municipal court convened to try Olkowski's case, Monday afternoon, the court room was crowded with interested spectators who had gathered to hear the evidence. Those who comprised the jury were Emil Hack,
Chas. Decanter, James Baker, Chas.
Keep and Pat Johnson, chosen by Sheriff Jilison. A sixth juror had been impaneled but he was later excused and it was agreed to try the case with five men. H. F. Steele was attorney for the defendant and District Attorney Miller for the state.
A large number of witnesses, all from Three Lakes, were sworn.

F. S. Campbell, the complaining witness, testified that Olkowski conducted a place of business on the main street of Three Lakes in a building formerly occupied as a saloon. The place now contained a bar, ice box and mirror and had all the appearance of a saloon or a place where liquor is dispensed. (While the witness did not say that Olkowski had been dispensing intoxicating beverages the mere fact that the building occupied by him was fitted with saloon fixtures is recognized as damaging evidence.) Mr. Campbell further testified that by a vote of the majority of Three Lakes voters, the village went for "no license" at the election in the spring of 1903 and it is illegal to sell liquor there during the year from July 1, 1903 to July 1, 1909.

One witness named Smith testified that he was in Olkowski's place on March 31 and drank two bottles of Vivo and also took a drink which might have been wine but he was not positively certain.

The defendant when on the stand testified that he had not been selling intoxicating liquors but had received, before election, a quantity of beer and liquor from various breweries and distilleries which was sent to Three Lakes for campaign purposes. This he gave out free gratis to the boys.
(It is to be remembered that Three Lakes voted "wet" at the recent election and according to Olkowski's testimony one does not have to puzzle his brain to guess the reason why.)

According to the testimony of some of the witnesses, a beverage known as Vivo is a popular drink at Three Lakes. From what can be learned this so called Vivo is supposed to be a nonalcoholic drink, but many who have sampled it claim it has a taste resembling beer and providing a person drinks enough of it the results are said to be similar.

Attorney Steele presented a good argument for his client as did also District Attorney Miller for the state.
The jury after being out until late in the afternoon failed to reach an agreement.

In order to avoid the costs of another trial and assume the chances of the jury returning a verdict of guilty, Olkowski expressed a desire to pay all costs providing the case against him was discontinued. To this the attorneys agreed and the court consented.
In accepting Olkowski's offer, Judge Walker did not hesitate to tell him that the mere fact that he wanted to thus settle the case was an indication of his guilt.

Tuesday morning, Burgraff appeared before Judge Walker just as court convened and desired to plead guilty. This was after a consultation with the attorneys. Burgraff evidently figured that the case against him was too clear for an acquittal.
It is further stated that he did not like the appearance of the jury. After receiving Burgraff's plea the judge lost no time in imposing a $75 fine with costs.

Burgraff pled guilty in municipal court to a like charge a few weeks ago and was fined $50.

The sad experience of Olkowski and Burgraff will doubtless result in preventing the further illegal disposal of intoxicating liquors at Three Lakes from now until July 6 when the town will again be "wet."

ELECTRIC LIGHTS IN CAMP

Ed. Wall returned Saturday from Mercer to accept a position as cook with the Wisconsin Valley Improvement Co. Ed. says that the camp at Mercer in which he was employed was equipped throughout with electric lights, electric power being furnished by a dynamo operated by a gasoline engine. This camp is owned by Dan Shea, the Merrill logger, who has the contract for cutting the timber for the Brooks & Ross Lumber Co. As far as is known this is the only logging camp in the country lighted by electricity.

PARDON MAY BE GRANTED.

On April 22 Attorney Chas. E.
Briere of Grand Rapids will make application before Gov. Davidson for a pardon for Frank Martineau, the convict now serving a life sentence for murder in the state prison at Wau-pau. Much has been printed in the columns of the New North regarding Martineau's case. The crime for which he was imprisoned was the killing of Amadore Bonsecours at Harrison, Lincoln county, twenty years ago. The impression prevails among those interested in Martineau's fight for freedom that the pardon will be granted him.

EASTER PROVES UNPLEASANT DAY

Disagreeable Weather Prevents Wearing
of New Bonnets and Gowns

Easter Sunday was a gloomy day and those who arose early from their slumbers to see the sun dance were disappointed—for there was no sun.
The weather was in exact contrast to that which had been promised by the weather man. During the fore part of the day a cold rain fell leaving the atmosphere damp and chilly. The ladies who had planned to don their new bonnets and gowns were compelled to attend church services attired in their winter apparel. The men wore overcoats buttoned to their chins and there was no display of the season's styles in clothing.

One mean man was overheard to remark that he was glad that the weather proved so disagreeable as it enabled him in church to secure a full view of the person without having to stand up and crane his neck over some gorgeous creation of the milliner's art.

Many of the feminine population,
however, were real vexed and said most sarcastic things about the weather man which would have caused that much abused individual to squirm could he have heard them.

Providing next Sunday proves a pleasant day there will doubtless be a brilliant showing of fine clothes in this city.

POLISH CATHOLICS MAY BUILD CHURCH

Members of the New St. Joseph's Congregation Want Their Own House of Worship

The Polish Catholics who comprise the new St. Joseph's congregation of this city are making arrangements to secure a suitable building for church purposes in which they can be located permanently. They will no doubt at this time lease or purchase a building but later may build a new church of their own. Polish Catholics believe in maintaining magnificent churches and if St. Joseph's congregation does erect a house of worship in this city
it will probably be an expensive structure.

While it is difficult to learn just what the present plans of the Poles are it is announced by good authority that a new Catholic church in Rhinelander is one of the future possibilities.

St. Joseph's congregation consists of about sixty families. These people were formerly members of St. Mary's congregation, but as announced in a previous issue of the New North, left that church and formed their own congregation.

The Poles have provided a residence for their pastor, Rev. Ranczak. The house, which is rented, is located at 606 N. Brown street, and is now occupied by the priest. Since Rev. Ranczak's arrival in this city from Russia, several months ago, he has been making his home with Rev. Dr. Lienfelder at St. Mary's parsonage on King Street.

HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

Sam O'Brien Accused of Taking $60 From Sleeping Man

Sam O'Brien of Woodruff is in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of theft.

O'Brien is accused of taking the sum of sixty dollars from the clothing of a man who was asleep in a Woodruff saloon. He was arraigned before Judge Ames in second municipal court at Minocqua and bound over for trial at the May term of circuit court. Bonds were fixed at $500. Being unable to furnish this amount O'Brien will be compelled to remain behind the bars until his case can be heard.

DISTRESS FROM UPSET STOMACH

Also Misery from Indigestion Vanishes
Five Minutes Later

Take your sour stomach—or may be you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triagule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak; there is lack of gastric juice, your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is feeble, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

CITY HALL STEEPLE FALLS

The steeple on the city hall tower was blown off Saturday night, and now rests on the edge of the roof on the Stevens street side of the building. The steeple, which is of galvanized steel and weighs considerable, had been working loose from its foundation for some time and the high wind finally caused it to fall.

FROM NEARBY TOWNS

New London—The Advancement association is considering amending the city ordinances so as to compel transient merchants to pay a $5 a day license fee.

Crandon—Fire destroyed the summer hotel of Shoemaker & Wilcox at Stone Lake. The building was two stories and contained twenty rooms. The loss is placed at $200,000, partly covered by insurance.

Antigo—March was a busy month in municipal court. Thirty-one civil and thirty-one criminal cases were disposed of. The amount collected in fines was $433. Three fines of fifty dollars each were paid.

Merrill—It is very likely that Merrill will have a new industry in the form of a toy factory. A representative of the firm of A. Melnick & Sons of Milwaukee was in the city a few days ago looking over the field with the view of locating a plant here. As the concern manufactures wooden toys only there is plenty of raw materials here that could be utilized for that purpose.

Eagle River—The first shipment of sea boats manufactured by the new Eagle Aluminum company was shipped Friday to Port Washington. The order contained 500 boats. The company has orders for several thousand boats which will be turned out within the next few weeks.

Clintonville—Lawrence Moody, a Deer Creek boy, has been missing from his home for three weeks. He was last seen in Clintonville. As he had a considerable sum of money on his person his parents fear that he has been a victim of foul play.

Oconto—A bitter fight is on between the Water company and the consumers as a result of an attempt to increase rates over what has been charged for the last eighteen years. If the company tries to shut off the water a restraining order will be asked for from the courts. Mean while the rate commission has been appealed to. Mass meetings are being held, and it has been suggested that consumers let water run to waste if the company refuses to install meters.

Wausau—At a recent meeting of the Wausau Merchant's association it was decided to again hold the prize market days such as were held with such great success in this city last fall. The first one will take place on April 26. Cash prizes will be awarded for the best exhibits of stock and farm produce.

Wausau—The Milwaukee road has decided to extend its line from Knowlton station to the location of the United States Leather company in the southeast corner of this county and contracts for the work have already been let. The leather company owns between 500 and 6000 acres of land and will operate in that section for at least ten years, having entered into a contract with one of the pulp and paper companies at Grand Rapids for the sale of all hemlock logs and pulp wood, and contracts will be let to peel the bark.

Tomahawk—Friday's issue of the Leader contained the following: Work was started to-day of clearing a site at the east end of Somo avenue for a factory which will be one of Tomahawk's biggest industries when completed and in operation. Full particulars are withheld for good reasons, but will be given in due time. It is a certainty, however, that something big in the industrial line is in store for Tomahawk. The new factory will employ from 125 to 150 men.

Ladysmith—There is an epidemic of scarlet fever in this city. To prevent the further spread of the disease Health Officer Lundmark has ordered that all schools, public halls and churches be closed.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN.

Not a Blood Disease—Cured by Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with the oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. F. L. Hinman & Co. The prescription has now been used so long as to have proven its absolute merit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Soap.

MORE GRIST MILL TALK

A resident of the southern part of the state called at the New North office, Monday, and secured a copy of last week's issue which contained the article regarding Henry Wubker's ambition to secure a grist mill for this city. The gentleman told us that he has a friend in Waupaca county, who is at present the owner of a grist mill there, but is anxious to find another location. If the prospects for such an industry in this city are as bright as presented by Mr. Wubker, the Waupaca man may be induced to move his mill here.

Best Treatment For Colds.

"Most ordinary colds will yield to the simplest treatment," says the Chicago Tribune, "moderate laxatives, hot foot baths, a free perspiration, and an avoidance of exposure to cold and wet after treatment." While this treatment is simple, it requires considerable trouble, and the one adopting it must remain in doors for a day or two, or a fresh cold is almost sure to be contracted, and in many instances pneumonia follows. Is it not better to pin your faith to an old reliable preparation like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, that is famous for its cures of colds and can always be depended upon? For sale by F. L. Hinman & Co.

FARM FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Farm of 91 acres located on Pelican River just on the border of the city limits. One of the most beautiful locations in Northern Wisconsin and one of the finest farms in Oneida county. CRUSOE'S Dept. Store

OUR Easter sale and display just ended was the grandest spring event the store has had in recent years—the best display and the most satisfactory in the matter of attendance and sales. There certainly are very few in the vicinity who have not been in the store this week and with the extra force of salespeople employed we trust everyone received satisfactory service. Will the saloons reform? There is much talk of a united movement to better the conditions in the city. We hope this is true but we do not care to express an opinion at this time. There is a big chance for improvement.

The Payne bill is now in the United States Senate for consideration; or rather, Senator Aldrich has re-written a new bill. So far there has been little done at Washington, to reduce the tariff in the interest of the masses or does there seem much prospect that there will be. Tariff revision in the interest of the people is a good thing to talk at election time.

The Chicago Record Herald says in an editorial:

Discovery of jokers in the tariff bill as amended by the finance committee tends to dash the high hopes entertained regarding real downward revision through the influence of the Senate leaders. Apparently the Aldrich leopard has not performed the predicted miracle of changing its spots. And the skin of the Ethiopian in the tariff woodpile has undergone no transformation.

At the first blush the Aldrich production bore resemblance to the genuine article, built on the plans and specifications which were understood to have been submitted to and approved by the President. Twenty-four hours later jokers were being uncovered. The Senate measure, to all appearances, is mainly clever; and perhaps not so clever, either, when it is considered that its jokers are so poorly concealed as to attract attention.

MADISON LETTER

The senatorial investigation took a new turn last week. The assembly members of the committee who were strenuously opposed to going into the election further than the primary, suddenly decided that the only way to head off the real investigation was to change front. The Senate members are saying very little but may furnish fireworks when they begin their regular investigation in which they will not be hampered by the assemblymen.

One of the first witnesses called last week was A. E. Roese, of Oconomowoc, editor of the Oconomowoc Sun. It transpired that an error had been made and that instead of Mr. Roese the committee wanted O. E. Booth, deputy game warden. It was a case of setting a trap for a rabbit and catching a woodchuck, but the committee felt well repaid when Mr. Roese testified that he had supported S. A. Cook and received above $100 for his services. His testimony was straight forward and to the point.

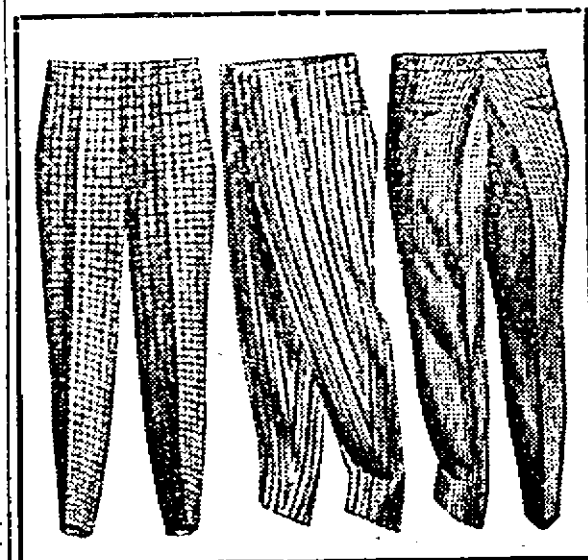

A number of game wardens were called and examined but there was little of a sensational nature. Some of them testified they had done political work during the La Follette campaign and charged the time against the state while others declared they had not collected from the state for such time. The assembly members of the committee manifested a great deal of interest in the former campaign, more than in the one under investigation. Several assemblymen were called to tell about the election of Mr. Stephenson on March 4th. This was contrary to the provisions of the resolution under which they are working but they stretched a point in the hope of squaring themselves and improving the record of their doings in the past. One assemblyman, Mr. Zimmerman of Milwaukee, refused to testify at this time but it is understood that he has something to tell the proper committee when the time comes. Mr. Towne one of the democrats who left the chamber when the vote was taken which elected Mr. Stephenson, made some damaging admissions but those who heard him assert there is more to be told and this will probably be extracted when the senate committee gets him on the stand. Assemblyman Domachowski, who told several members that he was offered $1500 to stay out of the chamber, now declares this was a joke, that the offer was not seriously made. Naturally enough, he is not believed by everybody. Such jokes are sometimes dangerous.

The question of bounty on wild animals continues to occupy a prominent place on the public stage. Last week a man from Crawford county sent the scalp of a black-and-tan dog

WASHINGTON NEWS

The net results of the fight made by the insurgent Republicans for the improvement of the Payne bill are: uncertainty as to the effect of the oil schedules, hides remain on the free list, the lumber duty is reduced one-half, and tea and coffee go back on the free list. Gloves and hosiery retain the high duties provided by Mr. Payne.

Champ Clark, the Democratic leader, missed his opportunity. Had he been brave he might have been great. When he made his motion to recommit he made it to include a complete Democrat program of what the tariff bill should be. This was against his own better judgment. It was in deference to the opinion of his party friends. Had he confined the instructions of his motion to recommit to such as would direct a committee to report a bill with reduced hosiery, gloves, woollens and a few of the articles that effect the weekly household bills of every consumer, he would have been able to command the votes to secure the recommitment of the bill with instructions.

As it was, there was no alternative for the insurgent Republicans when the bill was put for a final vote but to line up and vote for it. They could not vote for an out and out measure built upon the lines laid down by Mr. Clark while they could have very consistently lined up for a bill built upon lines calling for reductions in these particular schedules.

By far the vote of greatest general interest was that upon the question of striking out the proviso in the petroleum schedule. This is where "Uncle Joe" juggled the proceedings to favor his dear old friend, the Standard. The motion which had been carried in the Committee of the Whole was to place crude petroleum and its products upon the free list.

In the parliamentary tangle which resulted from a demand for a vote upon the oil schedule, "Uncle Joe" put the question for a vote upon the striking out of the proviso in paragraph 637, the proviso in question being that which levies the counter-vailing duty on crude petroleum and its products. The striking out of the proviso does not necessarily place the products of crude petroleum upon the free list, while it does place petroleum, crude and refined, upon the free list.

There were forty-seven members who voted against this; that is, there were forty-seven who had the hardihood to vote in the House of Representatives publicly in favor of the Standard Oil Company as against all the consumers of the country. Of course "Uncle Joe" was at the head of the list. When he asked that his name be called, he did so in a whisper so low that it could not be heard ten feet from the desk and his answer was given in the same tone of voice.

Mr. Norris of Nebraska had offered an amendment to the amendment of Mr. Vreeland and John Dalzell had made a point of order against it. Mr. Cooper was on the floor at the time but when he returned Mr. Leavort informed him of the situation and then the Representative from the first Wisconsin district said:

"I am informed by a colleague from my State that the gentleman from New York himself presented the amendment and the Chair announced an amendment offered by the gentleman from New York. If that be true, and it was presented to the Committee of the Whole, the point of order comes too late, does it not, debate having begun? If the pending amendment comes as an amendment by the gentlemen from New York then it does not come as the amendment provided by the rule. If the chair put it to the Committee of the whole as an amendment offered by the gentleman from New York, then it is an amendment offered by the gentleman from New York, by the unanimous consent of the committee, and it is not the amendment named in the rule—the rule amendment."

"The Chair, I think, under the rule, was himself bound to put the rule amendment, but this was not done; and there is now before the committee by unanimous consent an amendment offered by the gentleman from New York, and an objection such as if here being made that it violates or that a proposed amendment to it violates the rule, comes too late, because debate upon it was in progress when I entered the chamber, the gentleman from New York himself having the floor."

John Dalzell's whole demeanor changed. He sank into his seat and defeat was pictured on his countenance. The Chair sustained the point of order but upon appeal was overruled by a vote of 135 yeas to 163 noes.

The making of a gift to the Tobacco Trust was the last act which the House performed in the committee of the Whole during the consideration of the tariff bill.

It required two days' consideration for the Senate to pass the Census bill which was reported by Senator La Follette with many amendments, the principal of which affected the Civil Service provisions of the bill. As amended in the Senate, the bill complies with all of the objections which President Roosevelt made to the bill passed during the last session. Although Senator Bailey and other senators made severe attacks upon the civil service provisions, the committee amendments were adopted without a record vote. This is the first bill which Senator La Follette has had charge of during his senatorial career. That is, it is the first that he has had as a chairman. In the House of Service fight, he took such a position on that bill as to be virtually in charge of it. The census bill was but slightly amended on the floor in the manner in which it was presented by the Committee.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS

In spite of the unusually unfavorable weather there has been growing interest in the special meetings conducted by Evangelist and Mrs. Wilbur L. Clapp at the Baptist church, and the attendance increases from night to night.

Mrs. Clapp is an efficient aid in the work, not only delighting with the sweet and impressive singing, but also in leading the people in the service of praise.

The Evangelist, Pastor Bergstrom and others are taking a religious census of the city and finding many who neither attend church or have their children in Sunday school and upon whom no pastor or christian has ever called.

Mr. Clapp has his office in the lecture room of the church and would be glad to converse with any who call from 10 to 11 a. m. any day except Monday.

The plain practical addresses of the Evangelist are being greatly appreciated and proving very helpful to all who hear them. Services are held every evening except Monday at 7:30 and every one in Rhineland is most cordially invited to attend.

TO TOMAHAWK ON JULY 3

It is safe to state that at least one-half the members of Lake Camp 1749 of this city will attend the Modern Woodman picnic at Tomahawk, July 3. This number, increased by all the local people not members of the lodge, who have expressed their intentions of attending, will probably give Rhineland a larger delegation at the picnic than that from any other city represented in the Northeastern Association. It is probable that special train service will be secured between this city and Tomahawk for the accommodation of these people. The Woodman picnic will be one of the biggest events ever held at Tomahawk and the citizens there will put forth a united effort to properly provide for the pleasure and entertainment of the visitors.

THE HOTTENTOT TOT

Here is a tongue twister now going the rounds of the press. How fast can you say it?

If a Hottentot taught a Hottentot tot to totter the tot could totter, ought the Hottentot tot to be taught to say "taught" or "naught" or what ought to be taught her? Or, if to hoot and toot a Hottentot tot to be taught by a Hottentot tutor, should the tutor get hot if the Hottentot tot hoot and toot at the Hottentot tutor?

John Barsky, who has been in jail here under charge of committing a burglary at Tomahawk last July requested to be given an opportunity to plead guilty and take his punishment, was taken to Wausau yesterday and brought before Judge Held, who sentenced him to the state reformatory at Green Bay for one year. John Barsky is a young man only 21 years of age and his home is in Three Lakes, Wis.—Merrill News.

SKOVGAARD'S Fifty Thousand Dollar Hand

It took Skovgaard, the famous Danish violinist, thirty years to make this hand.

To the ordinary eye it is not very different from other well developed hands. Yet it has the power almost automatically to express through the violin the exquisite beauty and marvellous tone-pictures which the player feels and sees as he interprets the work of the masters.

Incessant training and the inborn soul of the artist fashioned it. You cannot make genius. But genius and the power of untiring work created this marvellous tool, now at last without his even thinking of it, obedient in every slightest movement, strong, tender, delicate, passionate, incredibly swift, to the wonderful dreams of the soul of its creator.

As an investment it represents a man's life-work. But it represents too the inborn gift which no money can buy. Without that no work could mould a hand like this hand of a master.

That is why it is insured for fifty thousand dollars.

Hear him at the Congregational Church, April 21st. Tickets on sale at Sawtell's.

WERE QUIETLY MARRIED

Miss Elsie Solr and Ernest Verev surprised their friends by going to Tomahawk, Saturday, and were quietly married there that evening. The ceremony took place at the residence of the groom's parents and was performed by Father Gibbs of the Episcopal church.

The young couple returned to this city, Monday, and are at present making their home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Solr on the south side. They may later go to house keeping.

REV. LANDELL, NEW PASTOR

Rev. O. A. Landell, the new pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, came to America from Sweden with his parents in 1893, locating at LaPorte and several years later entered Augustana college and Theological Seminary at Rock Island, Ill. After graduating from this institution he continued his theological studies for two years at the Lutheran Seminary at Philadelphia. His first charge was at New Britain, Conn. He comes to Rhineland from Gowrie, Ia. Beside the church here he has charge of the new Swedish Lutheran congregation at Conover and various mission points.

DEEP SNOW ON APRIL 28

Rhineland people who are complaining about the late spring this year would be surprised to see a kodak picture in the possession of Mrs. Wm. Carr. This picture is of the yard of the Carr residence taken on the 28th of April two years ago. The ground is covered with at least three inches of snow and the trees and shrubbery are almost perfectly white. It is a scene like one would expect to see in the middle of winter.

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation.

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

The New Mayor
Based on G.H. Broadhurst's Successful Play

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

BY
ALBERT
PAYSON TERHUNE
COPYRIGHT, 1907 BY
GEORGE H. BROADHURST

With all the advantages of youth, education and good looks and no vocation other than the enjoyment of wealth, the hero of our present story chose rather to sacrifice his ease and comfort on the altar of his duty as a citizen. His city called him to save her from spoliation and corruption, and he responded to the call. To lure him from the path of right came the seductions of love and the claims of a revered parent's memory, allied with the mighty forces at the command of political and financial malefactors. The firmness with which "the man of the hour," singled out for the highest post in a great municipality by those who saw in him only a weakling and a fool, resisted the very forces that had elevated him for their own purposes to official power will be an inspiration to the reader, as it has been an uplifting force in the minds of thousands who have witnessed its theatrical representation.

CHAPTER XIII.

ALWYN BENNETT sat in his own study at home in the big Bennett house that remained as almost the last landmark of that solid middle nineteenth century wealth and fashion which had once dominated a neighborhood now given over to office buildings and apartment houses.

The hour was late. An hour and more had passed since the young mayor and his mother had returned from the administration hall. The house was silent, and even the usually busy streets outside were wrapped in the hush that never falls until after midnight and is dispersed by the gray of dawn. Late as it was Alwyn had made no more to discard his evening clothes. Alone he sat, his head resting between his crossed arms on the desk before him.

Motionless, inert, lifeless, he had remained there ever since his arrival from the hall. But if his body was motionless, his brain was awfully busy. He would be could see no light in the tangle of events into which his own sense of right had plunged him. He saw the future stretching out before him dreary and barren as a rainy sea.

Through all of his months of battling he had ever struggled forward through increasing difficulties toward one bright goal—Dallas love. And now that love was snatched from his grasp, through no fault of his own, and bestowed on a man unworthy to kiss the hem of her garment.

At each step in the long climb Alwyn had asked himself, "Would she approve?" And now through trying to be worthy that approval he had forever lost it. For Dallas, he knew, had not only rejected him and engaged herself to Gibbs, but had done so with the belief that Bennett was a heartless, unscrupulous intriguer, undeserving of a good woman's regard.

A rap at the door aroused Bennett from his bitter thoughts. He lifted his head wearily and gave word to enter. A drowsy servant came in with a card. "He says it's important business, sir," said the footman. "And he wishes to see you at once, if possible."

"Show him up," answered Bennett, dropping his voice so as not to disturb his mother, who slept on the same floor. "I will see him here."

A minute later Horrigan's bulky form blocked the threshold. "Queer time of night for a call," he observed casually, as he entered uninvited, closed the door behind him and took a chair, "but my business wouldn't wait."

"Then state it as briefly as you can," directed Bennett, making no move to rise or welcome his unbidden guest. "It is very late, and I am tired."

"I've come to see you about our Borough bill."

"So I supposed."

"You won't call off your fight against me?"

"That question is hardly worth answering. No."

"I thought not. Well, Mr. Alwyn Bennett, I've got you—I've got you!"

"Do you understand me?"
"Perfectly. Is that all?"
"No, it isn't all," mimicked the boss. "And I'm in earnest. I've got you where I want you."

"That doesn't interest me. If you've nothing else to say—"

"But I have," chuckled Horrigan. "When it came to a showdown between us two I put a staff of men to looking up your record."

"You found nothing you could use. Is that—"

"No; it isn't even the beginning. Then I remembered about your father."

"About my father?"

It grated on Bennett that his dead father's honored name should be spoken by this low politician, but before he could protest more forcibly Horrigan went on:

"What do you think if I said your father was a grafter—one of the worst of his time?"

"I'd say you lied," answered Bennett calmly, "and I'd drive the foul lie down your throat with my fist. You'll have to think of some better scheme than that."

"Do you think I'd be idiot enough to come here with the story if I didn't have full proof of it?" asked Horrigan in contempt.

And, despite himself, Alwyn saw the man was speaking what he believed to be the truth. He paused in his impulsive forward move, re-seated himself and asked coldly:

"What so called 'proofs' have you been fooled by your heeler into thinking—"

"Don't believe me, hey? Well, you will fast enough before I'm done. Unless you're afraid of what I've got to say."

"I'm not afraid of anything you can say. The highest tribute to my father's memory is the fact that a cur like you cannot defile it. Go on. I'll listen to you."

"Very good," said Horrigan, quite unmoved. "I'll make it as short as I can. I remembered your father got rich pretty quick. He was a member of the organization, and his firm got the jobs of building the aqueduct and the new library. That gave me my clew. I looked up the specifications for both jobs, and I turned them over to the old engineering firm of Morris & Cherrington. You know the firm, perhaps. If you don't, you can look them up. They don't belong to the organization; they're the best experts in their line, and they can't be juggled with."

"I know them. Go on."

"I paid them a fancy sum to go over those specifications and then examine the library and the aqueduct and see if they were up to the mark or if the city'd been cheated by the Bennett Contracting company. I had a strong idea I was right, but I wouldn't speak till I had the proof. When I got home after the hall tonight I found the Morris & Cherrington report waiting for me. I brought a copy of it along with me."

"Well," asked Bennett indifferently, "what then?"

"Here's the copy of the report. Look it over for yourself. The crookedest job ever pulled off in this city! Third rate material when the material called for in the specifications was used at all. Granite shell filled with mortar instead of solid granite; foundations barely half the depth called for; inferior tiles in place of fireproof ones; cheap, crumbly iron and steel instead of first quality—oh, there's fifty such substitutions and frauds! It's the rawest, bummiest job I ever heard of. If any of the organization tried it nowadays the men who did it would be wearing stripes in a week. Graft, hey? Why, your father was the boss grafter of the century, the star graft getter of the bunch! He—"

"Hush! For God's sake, hush!" pouted Alwyn. "My mother sleeps only a few rooms beyond. I—"

"What do I care?" roared Horrigan in triumph. "Let everybody hear! The whole world is going to hear it unless that Borough franchise bill goes through. Best that bill and every paper in the country will have that report to publish. Stop your fight against us and the report is buried. That goes!"

See? Now, do as you please about the bill. You're a fine man to preach about graft, you are! The very roof over your head, the clothes on your back, were bought with graft money!"

Bennett scarcely heeded the coarse insult, nor did he note Horrigan's grunt of good-by and the clump of his departing feet on the stairs. The young man sat, lost, hopeless, horror gripped, his eyes running mechanically over the closely typewritten pages of the engineer's report. Outside as he was in matters of practical business, Alwyn could see that Horrigan had in no way ex-gerated the document's contents. He knew, too, that the firm of engineers who had drawn up the report were the foremost of their sort and above all shadow of suspicion.

Little by little the numbness lifted from his brain, and in its place crept a horrible conviction of the truth. His father—the gallant young soldier who had won a nation's applause in the civil war—the man who, poor and unaided, had built up a fortune against keenest competition and had earned a reputation for sterling probity which had ever been the delight and model of his son—this was the man whom a low blackguard like Horrigan now had the right to revile—a man apparently no better than the boss himself—than any dishonest heeler in the organization!

And, as if it were not enough that the idol of a lifetime were hurled, crushed and defiled, from its bright pedestal, the family name must next be dragged through the mire of political filth and ill repute and the dead man's memory forever blasted. Either that or his son must withdraw from the gallant fight he was waging against civic corruption, for that Horrigan would carry out his threat and blazon forth to the world the story and proofs of the elder Bennett's shame. Alwyn had no doubt. With all his faults the boss was a man of his word.

"Stop your fight against us," Horrigan had said, "and the report is buried."

Yes, the boss was a man of his word. Even Bennett admitted that. He would fulfill his promise in either event.

Indistinctly Alwyn began to review the case. On the one side a perhaps Quixotic fight for an abstract principle—a fight whose reward was political death, loss of the woman he adored, family shame that might crush his fragile old mother to the very grave. On the other wealth, honor, love, the governorship, a future happy and glorious.

Was he not a fool to hesitate? Had he not saved his conscience sufficiently by vetoing the Borough franchise bill? Had he the right to bring this new shame upon his mother's gray head? Where lay his highest duty?

The soft rustling of silk and a hand laid in light caress upon his head aroused the miserable man from his reflections.

Bennett looked up to see his mother standing beside him. She had thrown on a wrapper and in slippers feet had stolen noiselessly into the study.

"I was awoken by voices," she explained. "I thought I heard some one talking excitedly in here. Is anything the matter?"

"Nothing, nothing dear," he answered gently, drawing the little old lady affectionately down to a seat on his knee and smiling manfully into her sleep-fushed face; "nothing is the matter. Only a business call."

"A business call at 2 o'clock in the morning?" she exclaimed. "Dear boy, you are working too hard. Your father never brought his business worries and work home. He always left them at the office. Can't you do the same? You'll wear yourself out."

"My father—" began Bennett, but the name choked him.

"You are growing to be so much like him," went on Mrs. Bennett fondly. "And it makes me so happy that you are. Your splendid fight against that infamous Borough bill, for instance. How proud he would have been of that! It is just the sort of thing he himself would have done in your place. He was surrounded with wicked and dishonest men just as you are. But through it all he remained true, honorable, incorruptible. What a grand heritage for my son! He— Alwyn!" she broke off, alarmed, "why do you look at me that way? I never saw such a look in your eyes before. Are you ill? Has something happened that you are keeping from me?"

"No, no," evaded Bennett. "I only—"

"You had a caller here before I came in," pursued the mother, refusing to abandon the clew to which her womanly intuition had led her. "He brought you bad news? Tell me, dear! I'm your mother, and I love you."

"You are making my course more difficult for me by asking such questions, mother," he answered wretchedly. "And I—"

"I only want to help you, Alwyn. I can't bear to see you miserable. A woman's wit and a mother's love are often a combination that can solve problems beyond even the wisest man's powers of logic. Let me help you."

"I was trying to make up my mind," vaguely replied Bennett, sorely distressed by her pleading, "whether a man ought to follow his conscience, even if it leads to heartbreak for those he loves, or whether he ought to let conscience go by the board for once and protect the happiness of his loved ones."

"Alwyn! How can you hesitate a second over such a question. One must go right, no matter what the consequence."

"I don't know about that," he said moodily.

"You know it perfectly well. It is what your father would have advised and— But, Alwyn, you surely are not making yourself unhappy over a mere supposititious case?"

"Well," he continued, "let us take a 'mere supposititious case' if you like. Suppose, for instance, that a man holding a position of trust had had a father whose memory he honored and revered as I do my own father's?"

"Yes?" prompted Mrs. Bennett as he paused.

"Suppose some one tempts him to betray his position of trust, even as I have lately been tempted, and threatens in case of his refusal to make public certain facts which would prove his dead father to have been a scoundrel. Now, what should the man do? Should he let his father's sacred memory be trampled in the mud, let his duty go by default and save—"

"It would be an awful responsibility to decide such a question," said Mrs. Bennett, with a little shudder, "but there could be only one reply."

"And that is?"

"He must do his duty, be the results what they may."

"You really think so?"

"There can be no doubt. Right is right and—"

"It shall be as you say," groaned Alwyn.

"What?" queried Mrs. Bennett, startled at the despair in his voice. "Do you mean it is an actual case? Some friend of yours, perhaps?"

Bennett nodded.

"Oh, the poor, poor fellow!" she sympathized. "What a terrible position for him! It was he, perhaps, that I heard talking to you in here just now. No wonder he seemed excited! The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children even unto the—"

"It is something less hard on the children than on the wives," mused Bennett, half to himself.

"The wives? Your friend has a mother living? That makes it doubly hard. Oh, my son, every day I thank God in all humility that my husband lived so blameless a life and left so honored a name! How grateful you and I both ought to be for—"

"It is easy enough to decide for some one you have never seen," retorted Bennett almost rudely, "but suppose the dishonest man in my story had been your father and—"

"I refuse to suppose anything of the sort!" interrupted his mother indignantly, rising to her feet. "I wonder that you can speak so! How can you suggest so horrible a thing?"

"Just a thoughtless, tactless speech of mine. That's all," lied Alwyn. "It's very late. You'll have a headache, I'm afraid. Won't you go to bed?"

"Yes. It is late, and I'm keeping you up. Good night, dear. I wish your friend—"

She checked herself suddenly, with a little gasp. Bennett, glancing up to Cynthia Garrison.

her, saw that her eyes were riveted on a bit of pasteboard lying on the corner of his desk directly beneath the reading lamp.

It was Horrigan's card.

Slowly the mother's gaze shifted from the card to her son. From her face the color had been crushed by some swift emotion that left it very old, pale and sunken.

"Mr. Horrigan?" she murmured. "It was he who was your visitor tonight? Surely he isn't the sort of a man to care about his father's reputation for honesty, is he?"

"You're tired, mother," interrupted Bennett in haste. "Won't you—"

"Wait!" she panted. "His visit here— Alwyn?" her voice rising to a wall of panic stricken appeal. "Did—did that man dare to hint anything against your father? Tell me the truth! I have a right to know. Did he?"

Alwyn bowed his head in silence. "Tell me what he said?"

"He said," muttered Bennett, almost incoherently, "he said my father made his fortune—by—graft!"

"And you thrashed him and threw him out of the house?" she cried, her old eyes ablaze.

"No."

"Alwyn?"

"He proved what he said!"

"It is a lie! A wicked, abominable lie!"

"It is the truth, mother. Would I have told you such a thing—would Horrigan have left this room alive—if it were not true?"

A silence—dreadful in its intensity—fell over the room. Alwyn dared not look at his mother. At last she spoke: "I must know more. I refuse to believe one word. You spoke of proofs. What are they?"

Without a word, Bennett handed her the report left by Horrigan. For a time silence brooded over the study, broken only by the occasional turning of a page of the report. Then, after what seemed to Alwyn an eternity of waiting, the document slid to the floor. Bennett glanced at his mother. She was standing rigid, her face cold and hard as granite.

"Horrigan has ferreted this out," he said, not daring to draw nearer or proffer comfort to the woman whom the boss' disclosure had turned to command. "Dorothy!"

"I do not advise, I command. Dorothy!"

"He has secured the proofs and says he will publish them broadcast unless I withdraw my opposition in the Borough franchise matter. If I let that bill pass, Friday he will burn the report, and—"

"There is only one thing to do," interposed the mother, speaking with slow decision, her voice as cold and colorless as her face. "Right must prevail, no matter what—"

"Mother!" cried Alwyn, trembling. "You advise me to— You advise me to—"

"I do not advise, I command. Do right!"

"CHAPTER XIII.

THE momentous Friday had arrived; the day whereon the famous—or infamous—Borough Street railway bill in its amended form was to come up for the aldermen's consideration.

Every paper in the city devoted columns to the situation. Everywhere it was known that the "boy mayor" was fighting with all his might the bill he had already vetoed. Equally well was it understood that Horrigan was making the battle of his whole career in behalf of the measure. If he could but induce his "solid thirteen" aldermen to stand firm and could maintain his hold on Roberts for the fourteenth, all would be plain sailing and the bill would pass by a two-thirds vote in spite of the mayor's veto.

More than the mere bill and his price for it were included in Horrigan's reasons for his present activity. He recognized that his prestige as boss was at stake—that in case of failure his hold on the organization would be considerably weakened, perhaps almost so much shaken as to permit Phelan to fulfill his once absurd threat to tear him down from his eminence. For the whole organization was viewing with breathless interest the duel between Horrigan and the youthful mayor the boss had "made." In such circles a beaten man commands scant respect.

The board of aldermen were in session in the city hall. Of the antechamber of the great room where they met was a small, snugly furnished apartment, first of a series of similar rooms that stretched away, with connecting doors, to the far end of the main corridor. This place, with the room adjoining, had once been the comptroller's office. Of late, however, that official had changed his quarters and the room nearest the antechamber had been appropriated by Horrigan himself as a sort of unofficial surgery, where he could sit at ease and transact business at close quarters whenever the organization's secret interests demanded his presence at the city hall.

Here, his whereabouts known only to his intimate and personal lieutenants, the boss was wont to sit at ease, like some fat, rubicund spider in the center of a web of intrigue, and issue his orders or plans of campaign. Some of these were carried by word of mouth through the anteroom into the aldermanic chamber. Others he transmitted by means of a telephone that stood ready on the center table, before which his great easy chair was always placed.

Around this table as the board of aldermen were about to convene on the fateful Friday of the Borough bill's final consideration sat three men—Wainwright, Gibbs and Horrigan. The former, in spite of his habitual steady coolness, was plainly uneasy. Gibbs made no effort to deny his anxiety. His eyes were bloodshot, his manner abstracted and his nerves evidently strung to breaking point. Horrigan alone of the trio had abated not one jot of the colossal calm and brutal power that were part and parcel of the man's mighty character.

"When will our bill come up, do you suppose?" asked Gibbs, breaking a brief silence.

"In half an hour or so probably," answered Horrigan, glancing at his watch. "I thought it was better for us to get here ahead of time."

"Half an hour," fumed Gibbs, "and neither Ellis nor Roberts here yet! Suppose they don't get here on time?"

"They will," grunted Horrigan placidly.

"Do you think it is possible either of them has come yet?" went on Gibbs, with a glance at the antechamber door.

"No."

"How do you know? Perhaps—"

"Williams would have told me. He knows where I'm to be found."

"You're sure Ellis and Roberts will show up?"

"Yes."

"How soon?"

"In good time."

"But suppose they don't?" insisted Gibbs nervously. "What then?"

"Why, if they don't, then they won't. What do you suppose?" snapped Horrigan. "What's the matter with you, anyhow? Are you looking for a museum job as the 'human question mark'?"

"Gibbs is naturally nervous," explained Wainwright. "He's not so old at this game as you and I, Horrigan, and we must make allowances."

"Nervous?" grunted the boss. "I should say he is! Just look at that cigar I gave him. He's been chewing it as if it was a sausage. That's no way to treat a fifty-cent cigar, man! Here, try another, and see if you can't smoke it instead of eating a free lunch off it. Nothing like a good smoke to steady your nerves, is it?"

The antechamber door opened, and Williams hurried in.

"I got Ellis!" he reported. "He's here, and—" with significant emphasis—"he'll vote right!"

"Good!" assented Horrigan. "I thought he'd come to time. Now, for Roberts and the thing's done."

"The gallery in there is jammed," reported Williams, jerking his head toward the aldermanic chamber. "I never saw such a mob in the place before."

"That's what comes of all this newspaper publicity," growled Horrigan. "If it wasn't for the papers the people'd never make any trouble for us. But they read the news and then they get silly ideas about their 'rights,' and a lot of them come here to see they don't get swindled. Lord! If the papers would only suspend publication for one month, I'd guarantee to put the whole state in my vest pocket. They're always butting in to spoil the organization's honest profits. How are the crowd in the galleries behaving?"

"They're quiet," answered Williams meekly. "Too quiet. That's what bothers me. They seem to be waiting for the Borough bill to—"

"If they raise any row, rush a motion through to clear the galleries," ordered Horrigan.

"Nothing short of the police could clear away that big crowd."

"Then we'll have the police in to help."

"But," argued Williams, "that would mean a riot, and a lot of people would get hurt. All the newspapers tomorrow would—"

"Never mind that. Go ahead and do as you're told. At the first sign of disapproval from the galleries have the motion passed and turn the police loose. Understand?"

"All right," acquiesced Williams dubiously and withdrew.

Wainwright opened his mouth to protest, but Horrigan was already busy at the telephone.

"Hello!" he called. "I want 900 F— 900 F. Yes—yes. Is that the captain?" he went on a moment later. "Then send him to the phone. Tell him Mr. Horrigan— Hello, captain! After another pause. "Yes, it's Horrigan. At city hall. In the aldermanic chamber there's a mob, and we're likely to need the police to quiet 'em. Yes. No, no, 'dret' them, you fool! 'Quiet' them! Yes. Send us a squad at double quick, and let the sergeant report to Williams. Let the boys bring their night sticks, and tell 'em they're to take no back talk and not to be afraid to slug if it comes to that, and I guess it will. Pick out the right sort to send. Yes. Of course I'll back up anything they do. Sure. 'Rush 'em. Goodbye."

"But"—began Wainwright as Horrigan hung up the receiver. The boss cut him short. "I'll let that gallery crowd see it ain't safe to interfere with my work."

"But," protested Wainwright, "surely it will not be necessary to—"

"To break heads? It probably will. Why not?"

"I'd rather use diplomatic tactics."

"Diplomacy's a game I never took the trouble to learn."

"But those people you're about to antagonize control votes?"

"Yes. The people may control the votes, but we count them. See the difference?"

"But doesn't the law permit the public to attend these meetings?"

"Only so long as they behave themselves. If a few of 'em get clubbed they won't be so ready next time to butt in where they aren't wanted. They—"

The tinkle of the telephone bell cut short the boss' public spirited remarks. Horrigan unsling the receiver.

"Hello!" he hailed. "Who's— Oh, Roberts, eh?"

"Is it Roberts?" cried Gibbs excitedly.

"No," snarled Horrigan in ponderous sarcasm. "It's the car of Russia telephoning to borrow a nickel. I called him 'Roberts' just to flatter him. Go on, Roberts! What's that? Yes, this is Mr. Horrigan. Want to see me, do you? What for? No, there isn't. He went on angrily after a moment's listening. "You and I settled all that. Come and do your share of the— Yes, I tell you it's up to you to make good."

Another pause, during which Gibbs and Wainwright glanced at each other in suspense. Then the boss continued, in a louder voice, over the wire:

"Well, come to my room in the city hall, then. If you've got to see me. But there's no need for it. It's all settled, and there's nothing more to be said. I'll be here. Don't keep me waiting. I— What's that? No! I won't come to you! You'll come to me, and you'll come on the double quick! Jump now! If you don't— No, that's all. Hurry up!"

"Wouldn't it be wiser," suggested Gibbs, "to humor the man by going to him, as he suggests? Then—"

"No, it wouldn't!" retorted Horrigan as he kept the telephone. "If I'd gone on the principle of 'humoring' folks I'd still be working at eighteen per cent selling ferry tickets. Take my tip, friend. Never go to a man. Make him come to you. That's business. And it gives you a 90 per cent better chance with him. Now, then," pulling a paper from his pocket, "I told you about the report I had from Morris & Cherrington dig out showing up Bennett's old man. Here it is. Like to look it over while we're waiting?"

"Little enough good it seems to have done!" returned Wainwright as the three heads bent over the document. "He's still fighting us, tooth and nail."

"Yes," agreed Horrigan grimly, "but it's a satisfaction to know it isn't only us he's fighting. He's cutting his own throat too."

TALKS ON ADVERTISING

VI.—Selling Slow Sellers

By Henry Herbert Huff

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

"Mr. Business Man, you were speaking of losing money on 'leftover' goods."

"Yes; I shall be glad to learn how I can avoid this loss."

"You cannot eliminate it entirely, but it can be very much reduced. I told you how to create a demand for new goods so they will move more freely, but the most experienced buyer will sometimes overstep or purchase the wrong kind of goods."

"The best way to avoid having many remainders is to buy right. Goods well bought are half sold. Study the wants of the people of the community. Buy what will sell, not what you like. Learn from experience the sizes and qualities that go best and stock up on these. Follow the trend of fashion. Study goods. Know all of their merits and defects. Learn all that is to be known about the lines you are handling. Buy in small quantities and often. Pay cash if you possibly can. The first cost may be less when you buy by the gross or ten gross; but, counting interest on money invested, deterioration in value, space occupied, the chance of going out of demand, etc., this difference is wiped out."

"The best of buyers will get 'stuck' occasionally. When it occurs make the best of it. Profit by the experience. You may stock up on something for which there is not the expected demand; you may buy heavily of an article that soon goes out of fashion; you may purchase more than regular selling will dispose of—whatever the cause or size, get rid of it!"

"But I hate to dispose of articles at cost or below."

"But you must! It is the most economical way out of it. You buy goods to sell—not to show. You can't afford to tie up capital in slow sellers, and then, too, the public gets a bad opinion of your store if you resurrect old goods each season or keep the same merchandise on your shelves year in and year out. Make things lively. Keep goods moving. Turn over stock frequently."

"If an article doesn't go at cost, mark it lower! If you can't sell it at any price, put something with it and sell them together."

"How about dull seasons?"

"There are no dull spells for the merchant who advertises. When trade begins to lag he increases his space and makes better offers. During the summer months he pushes seasonal goods by creating a demand for them and makes things lively with frequent bargain offers. Advertising creates an artificial demand. It will sell wool blankets in July, straw hats in November and fall suits in February. Likewise it will shift trade to the less busy days of the week. Monday is the big day in cities and Saturday in the smaller towns. By continued advertising of 'leaders' on Friday it has been changed from a dull day to one of the best."

"Good day!"

RIPON COLLEGE BOYS MAKE HIT

The concert of the Ripon College Glee and Mandolin clubs given at the Presbyterian church last evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society, was a most pleasing musical event. The rollicking songs of the glee club interspersed with several selections by the mandolin club brought forth encore after encore until the boys had completely exhausted their repertoire.

Ripon banners large and small were used in profusion in decorating the platform, and lent a gay college air to the occasion.

The glee club, composed of twenty young men, is very well balanced and their selections were well chosen and ingeniously as well as excellently rendered. Their singing of a group of old songs while seated with the lights dimmed was especially good, and the solo, "There Little Girl, Don't Cry," sung by Harold MacNeill, leader of the Glee Club, was particularly delightful.

The "Little Milk Maid" duet by Messrs. L. Johns and Sperry, two promising freshmen members of the club, differing in stature by some three feet, furnished considerable amusement.

The work of the Mandolin club of five pieces was of the same high order as that of the Glee Club.

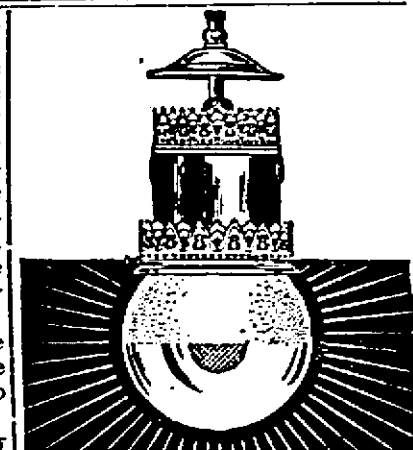

The young men are now on a two week's tour of Wisconsin and will visit Minneapolis before they return to Ripon. Tonight they appear at Fox Lake.—Portage Daily Democrat.

THE SLEEPING SICKNESS WHICH MEANS DEATH

How many readers have heard of this terrible disease? It prevails in that far-away country—Africa—especially the Congo district. It is caused by the bite of the tsetse fly. When it bites a person, the sleeping symptoms begin and finally the sufferer sleeps until death occurs.

Contrast this with the peaceful, balmy sleep of health. Is there anything more wearing than to lie awake at night, tossing about, nervous, with cold feet, hot head and merry knows what else? Short of letting the tsetse fly bite us we would do almost anything for relief. How can we prevent it? Mr. George Hayes, of Union City, Pa., writes: "I had lost my appetite, was all run-down, could not sleep nights. I had tried everything without relief. Vinol was recommended, and to my surprise, it helped me at once; gave me a splendid appetite, and now I sleep soundly."

What Vinol did for Mr. Hayes, it will do for every run-down, nervous and overworked person who cannot sleep.

IS CHAMPION POULTRY RAISER

D. Kirk sells eighteen hens that weigh 136 pounds.

D. Kirk is a man who does not indulge in idle boasting and when he lays claim to being the champion poultry raiser of Oneida county, he naturally is able to produce the proof with which to defend the title.

Experienced poultry raisers not only in this city and county but throughout the entire state will be interested in the fact that on Monday Mr. Kirk sold eighteen hens, the combined weight of which was exactly 136 pounds. The purchaser was James Gleason of the City Meat Market. These fowls are of the Plymouth Rock variety, a great favorite in this part of the state.

Mr. Kirk says that never before have such large hens been raised in Oneida county and he challenges poultry kings to produce their equal.

PETER IS NO MORE

Peter is dead and the sad fact is deeply lamented by all visitors to C. D. Bronson's news and confectionery store. For Peter, it must be understood, was the monster blue maitese cat that for years had made his home at Bronson's.

Mr. Bronson came into possession of Peter, ten years ago, when he was a kitten. He was given the best of care and grew to be the largest and prettiest cat in the city, admired and petted by every one who came into the store. Even people who professed to detest cats could not help but be favorably impressed with Peter. His enormous size and remarkable beauty never failed to attract attention. Old age, however, began to have its telling effects upon Peter. For the last year or more he had been afflicted with paralysis and was no longer the spry and lappy cat of olden days. Mr. Bronson considered it an act of mercy to end Peter's career and consequently Dr. Whitting, the veterinarian, chloroformed him, Tuesday.

WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE

An offer Backed Up By One of the Most Reputable Concerns in Rhinelander.

We will either cure you of constipation or pay for all the medicine used during the trial. You pay us nothing if we fail. That's a mighty broad statement, and we mean every word of it. We will back it up with our own personal reputation too. Could anything be more fair or secure for you?

The most scientific, common sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies. Their active principal is a very recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in its action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause any diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence or griping. Rexall Orderlies are as pleasant to take as candy and are particularly good for children and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can only get them at our store. Two sizes, 25c and 50c.—J. J. Beardon.

ROYAL G. WILSON, SOLOIST

Former Rhinelander Boy Appears in Concert at Duluth, Minn.

Royal G. Wilson, son of Rev. A. G. Wilson, formerly pastor of the Congregational church in this city, recently took part in a musical entertainment at Duluth rendering two vocal numbers. The Duluth Evening Herald gives him the following complimentary notice.

The program for the twentieth free concert at the temple yesterday afternoon was up to the high standard of its predecessors and was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience, which showed its appreciation by hearty applause and generous encore calls.

Royal G. Wilson, ably sustained the demands made on him for the vocal portion of the numbers. Mr. Wilson made his first appearance at those concerts and "made good." His voice is a bass-baritone and his work in the first selection, "It Is Enough," from the first oratorio of "Elijah" by Mendelssohn, showed that he is especially adapted for oratorio music. He has an artistic appreciation, a smooth voice with no marked difference between the upper and lower registers and his climaxes are well marked and true. For an encore he sang "I Know a Lovely Garden," by D'Hardelot.

HOPE'S CANDIES

THE ONLY AUTHORIZED VERSION

The ingenious unfolding of the story of the "Two Orphans," by many regarded as the most appealing story ever told in play form has been absorbing the attention of theatre-goers for a quarter of a century, but the great play still holds its place among the most popular dreams of the day. It is welcome every season, and it is especially pleasing to learn that the production to be seen at the Grand Opera House is made with the only authorized Kate Claxton version. This alone gives the right and complete impression of the true greatness of this drama. In securing Miss Claxton's version, just as she developed it to perfection with her genius and years of experience, Mr. Conrad, the manager of the company which is to appear, laid the foundation for deserved success.

The Military Orchestra rendered a number of sacred selections at high mass, Easter Sunday, at St. Mary's Church.
